What's New in the AutoStarter?

It's a lightweight utility that lets you automatically start and quit programs for you, much like Task Scheduler does, but it's simpler, better, and faster. When you install it, the program sets up a file containing the batch commands you want executed when you click on the start button. These batch commands can be a single command or multiple commands. To make things more convenient, you can save the list of commands in a text file and double-click it to start the same commands. When you click the quit button, the system terminates all currently running batch commands. As far as AutoStarter is concerned, you can start and quit programs with a single click using the included (trial-only) AutoStarter Lite program. To do this, you simply drag AutoStarter Lite from your desktop to your taskbar and start a batch command by simply pressing the right mouse button. Advantages You can have up to 100 different batch commands. There's no limit to how many batch commands you can have. AutoStarter can quit programs at a scheduled time of day. This is a very lightweight program, there's nothing to download, nothing to register and no setup to do. AutoStarter doesn't give you any disk space.
